Flames were discovered in a closet in the building and required active work to subdue them. A lot of clothing was destroyed. The Public Utilities Commission last week ruled that the railroad could not charge three cents a mile for railroad fare for passengers who boarded the train without a ticket. They ruled that the railroad company could collect ten cents over and above the two cent fare as a penalty where passenger could have purchased a ticket before boarding the train. On condition, however, that the conductor or an auditor collecting the fare should give a receipt to the party paying same which would be redeemable when presented at any ticket office of the company. The Iron Mountain and other roads have been charging three cents for all fares paid on the train since the two cent law went into effect.

Mrs. Adele Bequette Gratiot, aged 87 years, 10 months and 25 days, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. S. W. Andrews, in Russellville, Saturday, September 20, 1913 at 8 o'clock A. M. The deceased had been in poor health for some time past and the announcement of her death came not as a surprise. Mrs. Gratiot was for a long while a resident of the valley but for twenty years or more had been making her home at De Soto. She was a faithful wife and mother, and was held in high esteem by a large number of friends. After life's fitful fever she sleeps. The funeral occurred from the Church of the Holy Trinity, Monday morning, and the remains were taken to De Soto for interment that day. May she rest in peace. To the bereaved we extend our sympathy.

Some one attempted to gain an entrance to the post-office at Middlebrook Sunday night. Billy Seitz, who sleeps in the residence adjoining, heard the dog making a terrible noise and got up. In the moonlight he saw a man jump the fence and hurry away. Investigating farther he found a brace and bit, a bottle of oil and a man's coat at the post-office door. In the coat were found several papers belonging to a man in Bismarck. Two holes had been bored in the door and if Billy hadn't appeared on the scene when he did the burglar would soon have made his way into the building. Sheriff Blue went up to Middlebrook Monday morning, and by going on to Bismarck learned that the coat and brace and bit found at Middlebrook had been stolen from the blacksmith shop of Henry Adkins in Bismarck. No clue was obtained as to the identity of the thief.

S. H. Myer, more familiarly known as Cyclone, nearly came to the end of his earthly career last Friday near Blodgett, a small place in Scott county. He was riding in an auto, making a trip among the small towns where rail communication is not quick enough for his speedy temperament. A team of mules hitched to a farm wagon was approached and they cavorted around the road in a frightened manner. The chauffeur sent his machine to the side of the road, close to a tree. A limb caught the top of the machine and tore it off. Myer's head was in the way, also, and it got a severe bruising. His eyes were blackened. The chauffeur returned to Blodgett hastily and got medical aid for Myer. He then resumed his journey home for the week end, arriving in Poplar Bluff that evening. He will soon be out on his rounds of the territory he traverses for a cigar house.—Cape Girardeau Republican.

Felix L. DeLassus, of Menfro, Mo., Deputy Game and Fish Commissioner for the Thirtieth Congressional District of Missouri, was an Iron County visitor last Thursday. Mr. DeLassus is the purpose of the State Game and Fish Commission to vigorously prosecute every person who hunts without license. He says that men will be placed in every community to see that this law is enforced. So, if you want to hunt and be on the safe side, you had better call on the County Clerk, give him a dollar, and get your license. Mr. DeLassus will be here next month when he proposes making a trip to the St. Francis river and investigate the Silver Mine Dam. The fishermen are making complaint that there is no spillway there and fish cannot get up the stream. This complaint has frequently been made to the game warden in the past and relief has been promised, but none ever came. Certainly if the dam does not comply with the law—and we understand it does not—it should be changed to meet the requirements.

E. E. Evans returned from Jefferson City Wednesday evening, where he had been in company with Chief Counsel L. A. Hall, of St. Louis, and filed all the papers pertaining to the Bismarck, Bellevue Valley and Western Railroad Company with the Public Service Commission on Tuesday of this week. The Secretary of the Commission informed the officials of the company that a date would be set for hearing the arguments as soon as the Commission could be set for an open date, which will be in the next few days. Messrs. Evans and Hall went over the report with the Secretary, Chief Counsel and some of the members of the Commission in a brief way, after which they were informed that the proposition was one of merit and public necessity, and that permission to proceed would be forthcoming from the Commission at the official meeting. The engineer corps is now busily engaged in establishing a permanent location of the road. They have reached the F. G. Gisham place and next week they will establish a camp at Caledonia. The work is being rapidly pushed. The officials are busy securing the right-of-way and other matters, so that an early start can be made in construction.—Bismarck Gazette.

Charles Barrett, scout for the St. Louis Browns, whose presence in Farmington was noted in last week's issue of the News, on Friday signed up Tim McCabe for a place on the Browns' 1914 pitching staff, provided of course, that he can make good in this position. Young McCabe's home is at Graniteville. Recently Barney Peltz's Tigers played with the Iron County team and McCabe was on the mound for the summer resort lads. Barney was so much impressed with the youngster's work that he annexed him to the Tiger's staff where he would have a better chance to observe what he could do. Shortly afterward the Tigers went to Jackson to play at the Home Comers' celebration and in this contest McCabe struck out 23 men. The opposing pitcher was Jasper of the Chicago White Sox. This performance caused Barney to send for Barrett and also to notify other big league scouts. McCabe pitched for Farmington in a game with the Field-Lippman team of St. Louis at the fair grounds on Thursday of last week and got 16 strike-outs in this contest. Friday morning he was the owner of a berth with the Browns for 1914. McCabe is only 13 years of age. He is 6 feet tall and weighs 180 pounds. He has wonderful speed and a wide, quick breaking curve. He shows a wonderful lack of practice, but great natural ability as a pitcher and will undoubtedly develop under proper training. He is acquainted with Jeff Tesreau of the New York Giants who had been trying to get the big Eastern team interested in him. Young McCabe has returned to his home at Graniteville. He made many friends during his stay at Farmington who join the News in congratulating him on his success and who believe that he will make good in his new and larger position.—Farmington News.

Arcadia Demonstration Farm.

(From the St. Louis Republic.)

Father John F. Adrain of Arcadia College, working in co-operation with C. O. Carpenter, Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture for the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain Railroad, is bringing to a close a successful season with an experimental farm on the college grounds adjoining the Iron Mountain tracks at Arcadia, Mo.

The tract covers approximately sixteen acres. It is average Ozark land and the crops produced have been handed under growth conditions as bad as any in the history of the State. There has been no attempt to raise anything but crops commonly grown in the Ozark region. Outside of faithful cultivation, reasonable care in selecting seeds and intelligence in planting, no extraordinary means have been used.

"Father John," as he is known by the people throughout the Arcadia Valley, gave the farm his personal oversight and aided in the planting, cultivating and harvesting. He was assisted by two sisters of the Iron Mountain Order and two young men. A team was used in breaking, plowing and harrowing, and one horse was used for cultivating between the rows.

Besides planting and harvesting the crops, this little force cleared up about 3 1/2 acres of woodland, blowing out stumps with dynamite.

On this tract were planted 200 pear trees and 300 apple trees. They planted three 100-foot rows of blackberries, the same number of gooseberries, dewberries, raspberries and one-half acre of grapes, stretching wire on all posts so the vines would have support.

These crops were grown in spite of the drought only by first properly preparing the ground and by faithful cultivating, maintained throughout the entire season.

The yield, which it was estimated would yield from forty-five to fifty bushels to the acre, was left on the stalk and this and milo maize and sorghum were mixed and cut for ensilage. The drought was worse on the oats than anything else.

Speaking of the success of the farm Father Adrain said: "The results we obtained show absolutely that the soil of the Ozark region, by proper handling and faithful work, can be made to produce crops above the average Missouri crops of the ordinary year, even in the worst drought conditions."

The seed for this experimental farm, two carloads of manure shipped from St. Louis and a small quantity of bone meal, were furnished by the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain Railway through its agricultural department.

This farm is one of six located this year along the line of the Iron Mountain Railway in Missouri, Arkansas, Texas and Louisiana.

We hope to increase our yield next year by 100 per cent, providing we have a reasonable amount of rain.

It is Father Adrain's ambition as well as mine, following Archbishop Glennon's ideas, to give the young people as much vocational education as we can under all circumstances, thus aiding to fit them for a life of practical, useful productivity. The study of plant life, I believe, is the greatest of secular studies, and every child should have at least the rudiments of an agricultural education. A general knowledge of the soil and the care and seeding of plants will not only aid in character building and increase interest in producing things to eat, but will create a better conception of God's infinite economy and a greater respect for life and religion.

In addition to the experimental farm at Arcadia, Father Adrain aided Father Werner in the construction of a large wing being built for the Arcadia College at a cost of $45,000.

This building, being constructed of brick and stone, will add much to the physical beauty of the Arcadia Valley. It will be modern throughout, with light, heat and water systems, and increases the college capacity to 150 pupils. Besides he has attended to the wants of his parishioners in five surrounding towns, in all sorts of weather, by day and night.

No movement for the physical betterment of the Arcadia valley, which has been launched without the hearty support of Father Werner and Father Adrain.

Their handiwork is visible on the roads and bridges, on the cleared hills and fields, in good buildings, in the local commercial and farmers' clubs, in all overhauls for better farm methods, the introduction of better paying industries and crops, in every progressive avenue suggested, without regard to religion or politics.

The five inches of rain we have recently had will make your old shoes seem mighty thin. B. N. Brown has a big new stock of fall and winter shoes.

ARROWSHOT SHELLS

SPEED—SPEED—and again, SPEED

YOUR object in shooting is to get your bird with the center of your load. Of course! Then shoot these Steel Lined Speed Shells.

They are the fastest shells in the market. Their speed is demonstrated beyond question by the one true test in all ballistic matters—the Electric Chronograph.

Then, too, there is the experience of thousands of seasoned gunners who have been shooting the Remington-UMC Steel Lined Shells ever since they came out.

The steel lining is the thing. It grips the powder—holds it in compression—puts all the drive of the explosion behind the shot.

Your load travels quicker—you shorten your lead. You cut down the guess work on lead and angle—you get more birds.

Your dealer carries these speed shells. Get them. Use them. Find the Red Ball mark on
